LETTER FROM THE CHAIRMAN

By Vice Admiral John R. Ryan '67, USN (Ret.)

Dear Alumni, Parents and Friends of the Naval Academy:

It is with great appreciation that I extend my greetings to you with this Report of Donors to the Naval Academy Foundation for calendar year 2011. Thank you for your support for the Naval Academy's "margin of excellence."

Your donations to the Naval Academy continue to make a great institution greater still. The programs, facilities and faculty that your gifts support make it possible for the Academy to sustain excellence across the curriculum in the moral, mental and physical development of midshipmen to become outstanding junior officers in our Navy and Marine Corps. Indeed, your philanthropic commitment facilitates excellence in the preparation of midshipmen to become leaders who will serve our nation, and has enabled the Naval Academy to maintain its preeminent status among the nation's premier undergraduate institutions.

As we prepare to embark on our next campaign in support of the Naval Academy and the Alumni Association, your generosity gives me great confidence in our ability to support the Academy's future strategic priorities. Indeed, your continued support will be absolutely essential to ensuring that the Naval Academy remains "first in class" in leadership and academic education for our future leaders.

On behalf of the leadership, faculty and staff of the Naval Academy, the Naval Academy Alumni Association and Foundation, and the Brigade of Midshipmen, thank you.

Chairman, U.S. Naval Academy Foundation Board of Directors

For All the Right Reasons

THE U.S. NAVAL ACADEMY FOUNDATION IS THE ENGINE, FUELED BY ALUMNI COMMITMENT, DRIVING THE VITAL DIFFERENCE BETWEEN GREAT AND EXCEPTIONAL AT THE NAVAL ACADEMY.

You may not know much about the mission, contributions and daily activities of this organization established 1 January 2000—but you know the extraordinary results of that mission and effort. The work of the U.S. Naval Academy Foundation touches everyone in the Brigade of Midshipmen and, through them, the U.S. Navy, the U.S. Marine Corps and the future of our nation.

In strategic partnership with the U.S. Naval Academy Alumni Association, the Foundation is the inspiration, engine, vehicle and toolbox enabling alumni, family and friends to use the power of their vision and generosity to support, promote and advance the mission of the Naval Academy. The best and brightest students, the most important and innovative programs, the finest preparation for leadership and service to America

|||| ATHLETIC EXCELLENCE

Fund for Athletic Excellence

Prepare healthy and fit leaders through physical education programs and intramural, club and varsity sports. Athletic excellence funds will help the Naval Academy Athletic Association improve athletic facilities, recruit top coaches and fulfill other needs that benefit every midshipman.

and the world—in all these things the Foundation, simply put, is the difference between great and truly exceptional. This is where the tremendous additional potential and opportunity defined by private philanthropic support of the Naval Academy become real, and where the future is launched.

“I’ve seen the absolutely vital difference made by the Foundation and its donors firsthand,” said Vice Admiral John R. Ryan ’67, USN (Ret.), now the chairman of the Foundation Board of Directors and the former Superintendent of the Naval Academy. “I was privileged to lead the Academy during our first-ever comprehensive campaign, Leaders to Serve the Nation, which was hugely successful in augmenting the resources provided to the school by the U.S. government. Private gifts, guided by our strategic plan, enhanced all aspects of the Academy curriculum. Today, more than a decade has passed, and the Foundation is once again leading a development effort guided by strategic priorities identified by the Academy Superintendent, Vice Admiral Mike Miller ’74. This is an exciting new opportunity to go above and beyond, to provide the added margin of excellence for our students and faculty.”

Guided by a board of directors that ranges from Admiral Ryan to NFL legend Roger Staubach '65 to General Motors CEO Daniel Akerson '70 to astronaut Captain James Lovell '52, USN (Ret.), and many more of America's most respected business and Navy and Marine Corps leaders, the Foundation brings a wealth of experience and commitment to the cause of recruiting, educating and supporting the young men and women who have answered the call to serve their nation. There is no doubt about the Foundation's Job One: make the case for and raise the funds that enable the Academy to attract the best and brightest, and then to empower those students to their fullest potential.

Why are the fundraising and engagement activities of the Foundation so important to the Naval Academy? The clearest answer is that in the complex equation of federal government support for America's greatest leadership laboratory, Foundation fundraising is the value-added component.

"Philanthropy creates opportunity that wouldn't exist at the same level without it," explained Byron Marchant '78, the Foundation's president and CEO. "The federal government is well and faithfully doing its part to fund the Naval Academy, but the additional dollars that donors provide through the Foundation are the way in which we go beyond what is, to what can be. The way in which the Academy breaks new ground, explores new ideas and offers new programs. Our mission and the thrust of the donors who support it aren't about status quo, they are about ever better. That hasn't changed over the history of the Foundation, and it won't change as we address this new group of essential priorities."

Linked to the Naval Academy's strategic plan objectives for 2020, 18 priority areas have been identified (see sidebar). They range from the traditional to the cutting-edge, but all are vital to the Naval Academy in this second decade of the 21st century.

"Each of the priorities we've put forward," said Steve Maconi, the Foundation's vice president for development, "reflects an investment in the future of the Academy, its students and graduates. From the versatility and flexibility provided by the annual fund to the critical nature of cyber security research and innovation, and from leadership initiatives to athletic performance, these priorities shape the next decades at the Academy as we train leaders for a shifting and challenging world. New ideas and new opportunities have always been the stock-in-trade of the Naval Academy Foundation, and the growth and continued success of the Center for Cyber Security Studies

Magnify the role of this vital, one-of-a-kind program. The Center builds sophisticated skills for combating cyber warfare.

Project-Based Learning

Prepare midshipmen for the technologically advanced and complex Navy and Marine Corps of the 21st century. Project-based learning supports the Navy's STEM mandate by providing labs, equipment and internships that fully engage students in hands-on learning opportunities.

Faculty Development

Ensure faculty members remain vigorous and up to date in both pedagogy and research and that they have the professional growth opportunities needed to advance their expertise and scholarship. Through Naval Academy Research Council summer grants and other activities, they will remain outstanding role models and mentors to the Brigade of Midshipmen.

Faculty Recruitment

Play a role in helping the Academy compete for and recruit world-class civilian faculty, especially those in science and engineering. A highly qualified and expert faculty is essential to attract top high school students and provide a challenging education for the Brigade of Midshipmen. The competition for top quality faculty is intense; this initiative aims to provide competitive "start up" funds for summer research stipends and pre-tenure research support to attract world-class faculty.

Foundation, and the growth and continued success of the Academy are the end product."

Since the inception and inspiring conclusion of the Leaders to Serve the Nation campaign, supporters have given more than 400 million dollars through the Foundation, and the Academy is stronger, more advanced and more effective because of that exceptional generosity. A range of new opportunities and new requirements must now be addressed, and the current list of strategic priorities forms a to-do list of inspiring and vital proportions. A few significant examples reflect the importance of each and every priority.

It all begins with the Naval Academy Annual Fund, an absolutely essential pool of funds that help the Academy stay agile, flexible and ready to respond to emerging priorities or pursue exciting initiatives when opportunities arise. This priority centers on the powerful tool that Naval Academy leadership uses to leverage the greatest value for the Brigade of Midshipmen. As such, unrestricted giving through the Annual Fund is vital to both the immediate and long-term quality of the Naval Academy and its programs.

Cyber security already has become the most rapidly emerging new battlespace, with thousands of attacks on our nation's government, uniformed services and businesses occurring every day. Naval Academy midshipmen must be trained as effective leaders, defenders and warriors on this new front. It is an essential priority to magnify the role, scope and resources of the Academy's groundbreaking Center for Cyber Security Studies, a one-of-a-kind program building sophisticated skills and innovative new knowledge around the conduct of cyber warfare.

The Naval Academy is among the world's most respected training grounds for tomorrow's leaders, and it is also a kind of living laboratory for the art and science of leadership in a changing world. The Stockdale Center for Ethical Leadership is a priority with enormous implications for the coming decades, which will demand that our Navy and Marine Corps officers make courageous, ethical decisions. Through research, education, consultation and innovation, the Stockdale Center will help establish the Academy as one of the nation's premier institution for teaching and practicing ethical leadership.

The Fund for Athletic Excellence centers on a core component of the Academy's mission to develop leaders of character and competence. Athletics does just that, powerfully and lastingly. Skill, guts, composure, understanding of self, teamwork—all of these are as necessary on the field of play as they are upon the field of battle and the journey of career and life. Athletic excellence is also essential to showcasing this institution and attracting the best and brightest students.

There is a compelling and vital case to be made for each priority on the list, and the Naval Academy Foundation is the way in which these priorities become realities, powerful programs and points of pride.

"The Naval Academy is an exceptionally important institution," said Vice Admiral Ryan, "and the additional horsepower or high-definition or altitude—choose your metaphor—that is provided by the funding through the Foundation makes all the difference for, as we say, all the right reasons. The Foundation is your direct connection to excellence at the Academy, and that is an opportunity and responsibility as exceptional and special as the school itself."

Thank you!

Many in the Naval Academy community—alumni, friends, parents as well as corporations and foundations—support the Naval Academy and the Brigade of Midshipmen as shown in the 2011 Giving by Constituency chart. These donors funded projects spanning all Centers of Excellence at the Academy, as illustrated in the 2011 Giving by Designation chart, with special emphasis on support for the Naval Academy Annual Fund. Annual Fund gifts allow the Superintendent to meet both immediate and ongoing needs of the Brigade of Midshipmen and the Academy. The Annual Fund also ensures that the Alumni Association and Foundation can continue to operate efficiently and effectively. Finally, the Summary of Gift Receipts and Commitments demonstrates the generosity of donors over the last decade.

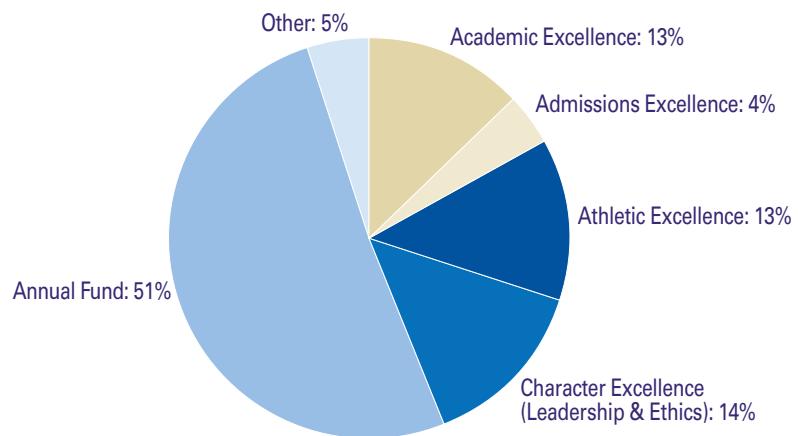

Thank you for your gift to the Naval Academy through the U.S. Naval Academy Foundation.

2011 ALUMNI GIVING PARTICIPATION

First Gift

While the Leaders to Serve the Nation campaign enjoyed broad support by alumni, parents, friends and organizations, participation among young alumni was less than seven percent (vs. a 23 percent participation rate for all alumni). With the help of midshipman leadership, the U.S. Naval Academy Foundation has embarked on an effort to afford members of each graduating class the opportunity to make their first charitable gifts to the Academy immediately following graduation.

Known as First Gift, this program replicates a long standing initiative at West Point that encourages and facilitates philanthropy via a monthly payroll allotment. The First Gift program is a class-led initiative with solicitations made on a peer-to-peer basis. The Foundation facilitates the implementation, educates and assists the class leadership and coordinates the paperwork. The inaugural class, Class of 2008, saw great success with more than 63 percent participation. And each class since has well exceeded the overall average alumni participation.

Thank you to our most junior classes for setting the standard for all classes who follow and for giving your fellow alumni something to strive for!

PRESIDENT'S CIRCLE

Every premier institution has special individuals who step up to positions of philanthropic leadership. Founded in 1995, President's Circle recognizes just such a group. These donors lead by example, inspire through action and give back so others may excel. They are the keepers of the spirit of philanthropy which is fundamental to the Naval Academy's establishment and sustainment of a margin of excellence across the curriculum.

We are deeply grateful for the leadership and generosity demonstrated by President's Circle donors in 2011.

A Family Calling

"It's my family's calling—and mine—to donate to programs that are worthwhile," said First Lieutenant Kenneth Mateo '09, USMC.

To Lieutenant Mateo, one of those worthwhile programs is the drama club at the Academy, the Masqueraders. A history major, he was also an active member of the club while a student and allocates part of his monthly contribution to the club. "Of all the extracurricular programs that have a tough time at the Academy, drama club is one," he explained. "In the midst of all the engineering and science majors, it's hard to gain an appreciation of the arts."

ROBERT MEANS THOMPSON SOCIETY

The Robert Means Thompson Society (RMTS) is named for Colonel Robert Means Thompson, USNA Class of 1868, one of the Naval Academy's first philanthropists and donor of the beautiful chapel doors in memory of his classmates. The society was established in 1996 to honor and recognize those who have made a charitable life income gift or who have named the Naval Academy Foundation in their estate or retirement plans. Planned gifts provide both near and long term resources that create extraordinary levels of support and help preserve the Naval Academy's legacy of excellence.

Thank you to the following individuals who have chosen to support the Naval Academy in this manner.

Aumni continue to deepen their relationship with the Naval Academy through generous gifts to the Naval Academy Annual Fund, class projects and strategic initiatives in the Yard. From curriculum development, project-based learning and international travel to faculty positions, athletic programs and admissions outreach—alumni gifts touch virtually every aspect of the life of the Brigade of Midshipmen. In 2011, more than 24 percent of alumni supported the Academy through the Naval Academy Foundation with gifts of cash, stocks, matching gifts and gifts-in-kind.

Each and every gift is deeply appreciated.

Forrestal Lecture Series

The Forrestal Lecture Series, presented several times a year to the Brigade of Midshipmen and the Naval Academy community, raises audience awareness of the worldwide impact of the social, political and cultural dimensions of the United States. Speakers are drawn from a wide range of fields, including business, politics, sports, athletics, the arts and the military, and bring to bear in their comments a highly sophisticated level of leadership and expertise. The Forrestal Lecture Series is supported by generous gifts from the Class of 1946, Dr. Robert Finnigan '49 and Mrs. Bette Finnigan, and the Tisch and Rubenstein families in honor of Captain Richard B. Rubenstein '58, USNR (Ret.).

On the Ropes

Low Ropes Course Certification was funded by Northrop Grumman, Lockheed-Martin and several generous individual donors. Through the Stockdale Center, Navy and Marine Corps officers assigned to the Naval Academy become qualified low ropes course instructors. The low ropes course challenges midshipmen in the areas of leadership, communications, teamwork and integrity.

Dr. George R. Lucas Jr. speaks during the 2012 Stutt Lecture

Stutt Lecture on Just War Doctrine and Cyber Conflict

Endowed by Mr. William C. Stutt '49 and Carolyn Stutt, this lecture is delivered in the spring semester to all third class midshipmen. The March 2012 lecture, entitled "Just War Doctrine and Cyber Conflict: Can there be such thing as an 'Ethical' Cyber War?", featured Dr. George R. Lucas Jr., the Distinguished Chair of Ethics. Dr. Lucas acknowledged skepticism regarding "ethics" during a period in which adversaries, international criminals and terrorists are relentlessly engaging in massive corporate and military espionage and potential sabotage of vital infrastructure. He argued, however, that increased attention to the ethical challenges of cyber conflict might prove surprisingly useful in formulating policy and guiding state conduct.

Fit with Philanthropy

24 Hour Fitness, where Carl Liebert '87 is CEO, rehabbed and outfitted the Halsey Field House weight room with state-of-the-art fitness equipment. Liebert had the privilege of playing on Navy's nationally-ranked basketball team in the late 80s. "The multi-purpose gym holds a special place for me," said Liebert. "When I was a plebe and didn't make the varsity basketball team and played on the JV team, we practiced in Halsey Field House. I like to think that made me a better person... know it made me a better basketball player."

"I have a responsibility to give back," Liebert said.

The Honor Flight Program is a popular MAG program in which midshipmen greet World War II veterans who are visiting the World War II Memorial in Washington, DC. This program focuses on paying tribute to the service of the great Americans who fought in World War II. Midshipman Matt Dishner '13 helped to lead the program which provided over a thousand volunteer hours from the Brigade to the veterans of World War II.

Spring into Action

Members of the Midshipmen Action Group (MAG) participate in numerous local volunteer and community service programs throughout the spring semester. During the previous academic year, they logged 20,000 hours in service, and in this semester alone will participate in six projects including a Save the Bay clean-up, Special Olympics Maryland, Greenbury Point clean-up, Mids for Kids, Honor Flight Program and a Spring Break service trip to Joplin, MO.

Established in 1992 as a community relations program organized and maintained by the Brigade of Midshipmen, MAG offers a variety of educational, environmental and social service volunteer projects and is funded through the generosity of the Class of '92.

Cyber Security at the Academy

The Naval Academy's Center for Cyber Security Studies (CCSS) will provide curricular and professional support across the Naval Academy, and advance the quality of education of Naval Academy graduates in cyber security. The Naval Academy Foundation supports the Center for Cyber Security Studies by cultivating individual and corporate gifts for computer forensic labs, wireless network security, hardware and software support, a guest speaker series, professional development for Academy cyber security faculty and midshipman internships at the National Security Agency and National Defense University. Significant early support for the Center was provided by SAIC and Commander David T. Leighton '46.

Enthusiastic Support for STEM

The science, technology, engineering and math (STEM) program encourages rising 8th – 11th-graders to focus on multi-disciplinary activities in all of the STEM majors offered at the Academy, with specific projects in forensics, robotics, fabrication, programming, aviation, electronics and more. STEM offers students the opportunity to tour labs and research areas, and participate in hands-on activities, design challenges and competitions, as well as exposure to the benefits of a Naval Academy education.

PARENTS

A critical component of the Naval Academy Annual Fund, the Parents Fund is a repository of gifts from parents of both current midshipmen and graduates. Established in 1986, the Parents Fund makes a tremendous difference at the Naval Academy and for the Brigade of Midshipmen. It supports summer internships and character development seminars, the Plebe Summer Book, a wide range of faculty initiatives, and a number of other programs and events. Additionally, parents contribute to selected programs such as International Programs and Athletic Excellence.

Thanks to all parents for their tremendous support.

The Foxton family: Ken, Samantha, Heather, Julie and Josh at the 2010 Poinsettia Bowl in San Diego, CA

Three's a Charm

Julie and Ken Foxton of Columbia, MD, have a license plate that reads "USNA 3." As the parents of multiple midshipmen—Samantha ('07), Joshua ('09) and Heather ('12)—their enthusiasm for the United States Naval Academy can be seen, quite literally, wherever they go.

"We began volunteering with the New Jersey Parents club and then at different events at the Academy," explained Ken. "Along that journey we realized that there had been a lot of parents and alumni before us that had given not only of their time but of their financial resources as well. Stepping up to the next level of giving was a foregone conclusion."

Julie and Ken have been President's Circle donors since 2004.

Foundation Support

"My foundation is about education, hospitals and being strong American patriots," said George Strake, president of the Strake Foundation.

Strake first heard about the Naval Academy's Center for Middle Eastern and Islamic Studies (CMEIS) while serving as chairman of U.S. Congressman John Culberson's screening committee, which selects stellar high school students in Texas for appointments to the Naval Academy.

"Federal dollars weren't covering teachings on the Arab world. It made a lot of sense to give to the Center," Strake said.

Established in 2005, CMEIS serves as an on-campus resource on the history, religion, language, politics and cultures of the Middle East, where many midshipmen will serve during their professional military careers. The Center coordinates curriculum development and study abroad opportunities for midshipmen, and brings guest lecturers to the Academy. The Center is thriving thanks to generous private gifts including significant support from the Strake Foundation.
